

Mission & Vision

The Large Countywide and Suburban District Consortium is an invitational network of large, diverse, innovative, and leading suburban and countywide school districts dedicated to dramatically improving public education through collaboration, leadership, and advocacy.

The Consortium envisions a public education system that ensures every student—regardless of background—realizes his or her full potential.

Who We Are

Together, the Consortium's 18 districts span 11 states from Washington to Florida, include 8 of the largest 25 school districts in the nation, enroll an average of nearly 95,000 students, and educate a total of 1.8 million students. Members' growing and increasingly diverse student bodies reflect communities across America, with 61% students of color and 41% qualifying for free or reduced-cost

Equity

- Two members have won the Broad Prize for Urban Education: Charlotte-Mecklenburg Schools (2011) and Gwinnett County Public Schools (2010 & 2014).
- Gwinnett was honored in 2017 as the College Board's AP District of the Year for increasing both participation and performance.

Excellence

- 15 of the top 200 US News & World Report Best High Schools for 2019 are in Consortium districts.
- Montgomery County Public Schools is one of only 11 education systems to ever receive the Malcolm Baldrige National Quality Award for performance excellence.

Leadership

- Consortium members were the 2018 South Carolina and Virginia Superintendents of the Year. Multiple members have received this honor at the state and national levels.
